The new cardinals

The following are brief biographies of the seventeen new cardinals to be created by Pope Francis in the consistory to be held on 19 November.

Msgr. Mario Zenari, Italy, titular archbishop of Zuglio, apostolic nuncio in Syria, was born in Villafranca, Verona in 1946 and was ordained a priest in 1970, incardinated in the diocese of Verona. He holds a degree in canon law.

He entered the diplomatic service of the Holy See in 1980, and subsequently served in the Papal Representations in Senegal, Liberia, Colombia, Germany and Romania. On 25 March 1993 he was appointed nunciature counsellor.

In 1994 he was appointed as Holy See Permanent Observer at the International Atomic Energy Agency and at the Organisation for Security and Cooperation in Europe (OSCE), and Holy See Permanent Observer at the United Nations Organisation for Industrial Development and at the United Nations Office in Vienna.

In 1999 the Holy Father, St. John Paul II, appointed him apostolic nuncio in Cote d'Ivoire and in Niger, at the same time elevating him to the titular see of Zuglio with dignity of archbishop. A few days later he was appointed as nuncio also in Burkina Faso. He received episcopal consecration on 25 September of the same year.

In 2004 he was appointed as apostolic nuncio in Sri Lanka, and in 2008, Pope Benedict XVI appointed him as apostolic nuncio in Syria.

Msgr. Dieudonné Nzapalainga, C.S.Sp., archbishop of Bangui, Central African Republic, was born in 1967 in Mbomou, in the diocese of Bangassou, Central African Republic. After primary school, he entered the minor seminary of Saint Louis of Bangassou and then the Saints Apôtres major seminary of Philosophy of Otélé, Cameroon, before continuing his studies at the Daniel Brottier Spiritan major seminary, in Libreville Gabon.

He gave his first vows in the Congregation of the Spiritan Fathers in 1993 and his perpetual vows in 1997. He was ordained a priest in 1998. In the following years he obtained a licentiate in theology at the Centre Sèvres of the Jesuit Fathers in France, but was then recalled to the Central African Republic by his Institute to carry out the functions of Regional Superior.

While in France, from 1998 to 2005, he was Chaplain of the orphans of the Fondation d'Auteuil and assistant priest at St. Jérôme, Marseille; he returned to Central Africa as Regional Superior of the Spiritan Fathers and parish priest in Bangui from 2005-2009. From 2008 to 2009 he was president of the Conference of Major Superiors of Central Africa.

Since 2009 he has been apostolic administrator of Bangui, and in 2012 Pope Benedict XVI appointed him as metropolitan archbishop of Bangui. He received episcopal consecration on July 22 of the same year.

Since July 2013 he has served as president of the Episcopal Conference of the Central African Republic, and in that capacity he participated in the Third Extraordinary General Assembly of the Synod of Bishops on the Family in October 2014.

In November of 2015 he welcomed Pope Francis in his diocese; in Bangui the Holy Father opened the first door of the Holy Year of Mercy.

Personally committed to the peace process in his country, in 2013 he participated, alongside the president of the Islamic Council and the president of the Evangelical Alliance in Bangui, in the foundation of the interfaith Platform for Peace in Central Africa.

From 1982 to 1987 he served as president of the Episcopal Conference of Lesotho.

He is Lesotho's first cardinal.

Rev. Ernest Simoni, presbyter of the archdiocese of Shkodrë-Pult, Shkodra, Albania, was born in 1928 in Troshani, a village a few kilometres from Shkodra, to a deeply religious family. At the age of ten he entered the Franciscan College in Troshani, beginning the process of formation for the priesthood. In 1948, at the height of persecution by the communist regime of Enver Hoxha, the Franciscan convent was looted and turned into a place of torture for prisoners. The friars were all shot, and the novices expelled. He was twenty years old, and was sent by the regime to teach in a remote village in the mountains. Here his work as a teacher became principally a missionary and evangelising task. After two years of hard military service (1953-55), he concluded his clandestine studies in theology and in 1956 was ordained a priest in Shkodra. In obedience to the bishop, he was incardinated in the diocese although he remained profoundly Franciscan at heart. In 1963, after the Christmas Mass, he was arrested and jailed in Shkodra, where he was held in solitary confinement. Sentenced to death, the sentence was commuted to 25 years of hard labour. In prison he became the spiritual father and point of reference for prisoners. In 1973 he was again sentenced to death as the alleged instigator of a revolt, but on account of favourable testimony from his jailers the sentence was not carried out. His prison stay lasted around 18 years, twelve of which he spent in the mines. After liberation in 1981, he was still considered an "enemy of the people" and forced to work in the Shkodra sewers. He exercised the ministry of the priesthood clandestinely, until the fall of the regime in 1990. Since then he has continued to serve as a humble priest, in many villages, seeking to reconcile feuds and to bring his testimony, which deeply moved even Pope Francis on a visit to Tirana in 2014.
