Declaration of the Director of the Holy See Press Office, Matteo Bruni

In recent days another employee of the Holy See has been identified as positive for Covid-19. The person had presented with symptoms during the month of March, and remained in self-isolation, continuing to work remotely. Not having further symptoms, the employee is now in quarantine and for precautionary purposes, the necessary sanitary measures have been taken in the workplace and checks have been carried out among colleagues, with negative results.
